The Department of Philosophy of the University of Chicago will celebrate the accomplishments of John Haugeland in a three-day conference entitled: Mind, Meaning, and Understanding: The Philosophy of John Haugeland.

John Haugeland, the David B. and Clara E. Stern Professor of Philosophy at the University of Chicago, has made profound and lasting contributions to contemporary metaphysics, epistemology, and the philosophy of language. His most important and lasting contributions, however, have been to the philosophy of mind, the critique of artificial intelligence, and the interpretation of the German existentialist philosopher Martin Heidegger. This conference will bring together scholars to discuss the significance of John Haugeland’s work in these areas and the themes that have animated his writing.
