Philosophy 50118

Wittgenstein’s Tractatus

Syllabus

Course Description

The course will be devoted to a careful reading of Wittgenstein’s Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus and an examination of some of the central disputes in the secondary literature concerning it, with special attention to the so-called “resolute” or “austere” reading of the Tractatus. The aim will be to provide an overview of the philosophy of the early Wittgenstein, with special attention to the critiques of Frege and Russell, the structure and the method of the Tractatus as a whole, and especially some of the most hotly debated exegetical controversies recently surrounding the work. Some attention will also be given, especially at the end of the course, to the topic of the relation between the Tractatus and Wittgenstein’s later work.

The Structure of the Seminar

Some prior background in the history of analytic philosophy is desirable. The seminar is open to all, but intended primarily for graduate students in Philosophy. It will be taught with this latter constituency in mind as the primary audience. Some effort will be made in the opening weeks to introduce students to some of the basic background and central issues, and to point students who require orientation in these towards helpful secondary literature. Accordingly, anyone may audit the course, as long as they understand that the bulk of it will be taught at an advanced level. The first half of the course will be conducted primarily in a lecture format; and the second half primarily in a discussion format.

Course Requirements

The sole course requirement is a seminar-length (i.e., 15 to 30 page) paper due at the end of the Spring Quarter.
Required Texts and Readings

This course is intended to be as much an introduction to contemporary scholarship on the Tractatus as to the Tractatus itself. The current literature on the subject is massive, and students taking the course for credit will be expected to orient themselves in it, and thus to read beyond the merely required readings for the course. Nonetheless, we must begin somewhere.

The following five texts have been ordered for the course and are available at the Seminary Co-op:

1. G. E. M Anscombe, An Introduction to Wittgenstein's Tractatus
2. Cora Diamond, The Realistic Spirit
3. Roger M. White, Wittgenstein's Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus

The rest of the readings will be available through the seminar’s Chalk website. The readings for each week divide into required readings and background reading. Students taking the course for credit are expected to do the all of required reading. The background readings are optional.

Students will be expected to be studying the text of Wittgenstein’s Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus every week of the course. Hence readings from portions of it will not be assigned on any particular week.

The following seven texts have not been ordered for the course, but may be of interest to students in the course and are thus worthy of special mention:

1. H. O. Mounce, Wittgenstein’s Tractatus: An Introduction
2. The New Wittgenstein, edited by Alice Crary and Rupert Read
4. From Frege to Wittgenstein, edited by Erich Reck
5. Wittgenstein’s Lasting Influence, edited by Max Koelbel and Bernhard Weiss
6. Marie McGinn, Elucidating the Tractatus
7. Eli Friedlander, Signs of Sense: Readings Wittgenstein’s Tractatus

The first three of these are in paperback and comparatively affordable; the last four are not. The first one is a good early introduction to the Tractatus. Each of the last two books above represents a recent interesting attempt to offer a definitive interpretation in the wake of the scholarly controversies about how to read the text that we will be exploring in this course. The other four are collections of essays from which, in each case, at least three essays will be assigned for this course (and made available through the Chalk site), while many of the other essays in each of these collections are also relevant to the topics of the course.

A full bibliography of readings relevant to the course will be made available in the third week of the course.
Schedule of Readings

01/08 (1st week) Introduction to the Seminar

Required reading (for this week and every week!):

Ludwig Wittgenstein, Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus

01/15 (2nd week) The Russellian Background

Required readings:

Bertrand Russell, The Problems of Philosophy, Chapter 12
Bertrand Russell, Theory of Knowledge, Part I, Chapter 9 (“Logical Data”)
Bertrand Russell, The Philosophy of Logical Atomism, Lectures 1 - 3

Background readings:

Bertrand Russell, “What is Logic?” [1912]
Peter Hylton, “The Nature of the Proposition and the Revolt Against Idealism”
Peter Hylton, Russell, Idealism and the Emergence of Analytic Philosophy, pp. 333-361

01/22 (3rd week) The Fregean Background

Required readings:

Gottlob Frege, “On Concept and Object”
Gottlob Frege, Begriffsschrift, Preface
Gottlob Frege, The Basic Laws of Arithmetic, Introduction

Background reading:

Joan Weiner, Frege in Perspective, Chapter 6
Cora Diamond, "Frege and Nonsense"
Cora Diamond, "What Does a Begriffsschrift Do?"
Thomas Ricketts, “Objectivity and Objecthood”

01/29 (4th week) Wittgenstein’s Inheritance of Certain Aspects of Frege’s Philosophy

Required readings:

Peter Geach, “Frege and Early Wittgenstein on Saying and Showing”
Cora Diamond, “What Nonsense Might Be”
Background readings:

Thomas Ricketts, “Frege, the Tractatus, and the Logocentric Predicament”
Cora Diamond, “Inheriting from Frege: The Work of Reception, as Wittgenstein Did It”
Warren Goldfarb, “Wittgenstein’s Understanding of Frege”

02/5 (5th week) Some Problems with the Standard Reading of the Tractatus

Required readings:

Peter Hacker, Insight and Illusion, 2nd Edition, Chapter 1
Rudolf Carnap, “On the Elimination of Metaphysics by Means of the Logical Analysis of Language”

Background readings:

Norman Malcom, Nothing is Hidden, Chapters 1 - 3
David Pears, The False Prison, Chapters 4 and 5

02/12 (6th week) Early Wittgenstein contra Russell & Throwing Away the Ladder

Required readings:

Brian McGuinness, “The Supposed Realism of Wittgenstein’s Tractatus”
Cora Diamond, “Throwing Away the Ladder”
Thomas Ricketts, “Pictures, Logic, and the Limits of Sense in Wittgenstein’s Tractatus”

Background readings:

Hide Ishiguro, “Use and Reference of Names”
Cora Diamond, “Does Bismark Have a Beetle in His Box?”
Thomas Ricketts, “Wittgenstein Against Frege and Russell”

02/19 (7th week) On the Concept of a Resolute Reading of the Tractatus

Required readings:

Cora Diamond, “Ethics, Imagination, and the Method of the Tractatus”
Warren Goldfarb, “Metaphysics and Nonsense”
Cora Diamond, “Realism and Resolution”
Peter Sullivan, “On Trying to Be Resolute”

Background readings:

Michael Kremer, “The Purpose of Tractarian Nonsense”
Warren Goldfarb, “Das Überwinden”
Adrian Moore and Peter Sullivan, “Ineffability and Nonsense”
Marie McGinn, “Between Metaphysics and Nonsense: The Role of Elucidation in Wittgenstein’s Tractatus”

02/26 (8th week) Some Typical Criticisms of Resolute Readings

Required readings:

Peter Hacker, “Was He Trying to Whistle It?”
Meredith Williams: “Nonsense and Cosmic Exile”
Cora Diamond, “Wittgenstein and Logical Syntax”

Background readings:

Hans-Johann Glock, “All Kinds of Nonsense”
Edmund Dain, “Contextualism and Nonsense in Wittgenstein’s Tractatus”
Peter Hacker, “When the Whistling Had to Stop”
Peter Hacker, “Interview with Edward Kanterian”

03/4 (9th week) Roger White’s Criticisms of Resolute Readings

Required readings:

Roger White, Wittgenstein’s Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus, selections
Roger White, “Throwing the Baby Out with the Ladder”

Background reading:

Roger White: The Structure of Metaphor, selections

03/11 (10th week) The Relation Between Early and Later Wittgenstein

Required readings:

Cora Diamond, “Wittgenstein and Metaphysics”
Oskaari Kuusela, “From Metaphysics and Philosophical Theses to Grammar”
Cora Diamond, “Criss-Cross Philosophy”

Background readings:

Juliet Floyd, “Numbers and Ascriptions of Number in the Tractatus”
Rupert Read and Rob Deans, “Nothing is Shown”
Oskaari Kuusela, “Wittgenstein on Philosophical Problems”
Marie McGinn, Elucidating the Tractatus, Chapter 12